COVID-19 Q & A of the Day

Question: Will there be a second wave of COVID-19?

Answer: Over the past weeks, Idaho, along with other states, have announced plans to start relaxing COVID-19 restrictions. But there's a big risk to opening up too soon—it could spark a second wave of coronavirus infections, warned Centers for Disease Control Director Robert Redfield, MD. It is believed a second wave could be even more dangerous as it could align with the flu season more than it did this Spring when flu cases typically start to decline. To prevent and/or slow down a second wave of COVID-19, people need to continue washing their hands, not touching their face, covering their coughs, cleaning and disinfecting surfaces, avoiding sick people, staying home when sick, using a face covering in public places, and of course, practicing social distancing (maintaining 6' of space between people).
